Back junior doctors' strikes – Kick Cameron out!

Junior doctors are set to strike in England again on 26 and 27 April. The Tory Health minister has wobbled over the question of imposing dangerous new contracts, but he is now pushing ahead.

The junior doctors and their union the BMA are fighting to defend the NHS, whatever the Tories and the right wing media says.

With Cameron and Co exposed as tax dodgers by the Panama Papers, it's clearer than ever that austerity means cuts for us, while the fat cats enrich themselves at our expense.

We simply don't accept the endless cuts and privatisation that are devastating our NHS.

We pledge our support for the BMA's action, to build solidarity for their picket lines and protests – and we call on the TUC to organise a national demonstration in support of the junior doctors and the NHS.
